WELCOME

From the Producing Artistic Director

I was first introduced to this show when I was a freshman in college. The student in the dorm room next door, Jeff Blumenkrantz, played the cast album constantly (it was an arts dorm — lots of music and musical theatre). Jeff made me a copy of his cassette tape — and I became obsessed with the work of William Finn. In 1995, the Arden produced the regional premiere of Falsettos, the very first musical we produced in this building. Three years ago, we produced another musical by Finn, The 25th Annual Putnam County Spelling Bee. How wonderful to now return to the brilliant and brilliantly unique work of William Finn.

This production is directed by Kevin Glaccum. Kevin has been part of the Arden family for a long time — we were all listening to cassette tapes in those days. Over the years, he's worn many hats here and in the Philadelphia theatre community, including working for many years as the Producing Artistic Director of Azuka Theatre, a company started by former Arden Apprentices. I am thrilled that Kevin is making his Arden directorial debut with this production. As a lyric says in this musical. "It's about time!"

If you are a subscriber, thank you. If not, please come back. We do a wide range of work — musicals and new plays and new takes on classic stories. Still to come this year are The Mountaintop, a gripping 90-minute play featuring two powerhouse performances; Good Bones by Philly's hottest playwright, James Ijames; the Broadway sensation Dear Evan Hanson (co-written by Benj Pasek, an EGOT winner from Philadelphia!); and Romeo and Juliet as you've never seen it before. As you can see, we bring together great artists to make these productions happen. Sometimes we sell out (you couldn't get a ticket to RENT during the final weeks of that run). And you become part of an audience who is passionate about Philly theatre.

William Finn passed away this past April, and we are grateful to be honoring his memory and celebrating his work with this production. More than anything, we are so happy to hear his words and music alive in our theatre. In November, there will be a concert at New York's 54 Below premiering William Finn's final work, Once Every Hundred Years, a song cycle set against the backdrop of the COVID pandemic. Jeff Blumenkrantz is performing in that concert.

A Message from our Honorary Producers

Welcome to the Arden's 2025/26 season! It is our pleasure to serve as Honorary Producers for the season opening production of Falsettos!

First, we heard that this play was a musical, and then we heard it was a comedy. Finally, we heard it described as an achingly poignant look at the infinite possibilities that make up a modern American family. We were sold! The celebrations and conflicts we see on stage—whether around a Bar Mitzvah, a ball game or a family dinner table—resonate far beyond our cultural origins. They remind us that faith, heritage, and community are inseparable from the way we live and care for one another.

We wanted to celebrate the artists, creative team, and staff who are bringing this story to life...so we became Honorary Producers.

In these increasingly fraught political times, unique and diverse families are not always celebrated. So, what better way to explore the intersecting and complex traditions within families than through a funny and tender production, with a dazzling score, performed by some of the Arden's most accomplished actors. We're in—who can't use a good laugh (or a good cry) today?

Enjoy the show and thanks for joining us!

I was lucky enough to see Falsettos in its original Broadway run in the early 90's. I had seen some great theater that told stories of how the gay community was dealing with the AIDS crisis; but a musical? That was a bold choice! I was bowled over by the show then, and working on it now has only increased by admiration for William Finn's genius.

Falsettos takes place in 1979 and 1981, a period in time that looms large in my personal history. It's when I saw the first news story about this rare skin cancer that was being found in gay men in New York and San Francisco. Little did I, or anyone for that matter, envision what was coming our way. Before the decade was over, I was working at Woody's, the largest gay bar in Philadelphia, and thus found myself at Ground Zero for the worst epidemic of the 20th Century. The scores of men I knew who would pass away from AIDS over the next 20 years have been very close to me as we've worked on this musical.

Clearly Falsettos is about more than a disease: it's about love and loss, about family, both of origin and of choice, about growing up and growing into who we are meant to be. I have been blessed that my birth family are people I love and care about very deeply. But like most people, I've formed other 'families' as I've travelled through life, some lasting briefly while others have sustained me for many years. One of my longest lasting families is right here at the Arden. I can trace dozens of some of my best friends back to having met while working here, and I have always considered the Arden my artistic home. It's good to be home.

The Legacy of Kids on the Arden Stage

Kids are celebrated at the Arden. Donovan in Ragtime, Olivia in Once on This Island, Bailey in The Secret Garden, and countless others have contributed to the legacy of telling great stories on the Arden stage. Many of them, like David Corenswet, who made his professional acting debut at 9 years old in the 2002 production of All My Sons (and is now the new Superman!), have continued careers in the arts, but all of them have made a lasting impression on our hearts and are integral to the Arden's story.

Larry Kraut and Terry, 1995

One such kid. The Arden first produced Falsettos during its 1995-96 season. At the time, Marilyn and David Kraut were Arden subscribers and theatre had become a unifying activity for their busy family of five. When the Arden went searching for their potential Jason at their son Larry's school and he was recommended to audition, Marilyn genuinely thought it wasn't the right time for Larry to pursue theatre, despite his interest. He was preparing for his Bar Mitzvah, and life seemed too busy. David jokingly told her not to worry—the Arden would never pick him due to his lack of experience! As it turned out, Larry was exactly Arden's choice to play Jason. The rest is history!

A full circle moment. Today, Larry lives and works in Dubai with his wife, Cash, and their son, Ezra. Marilyn and David are longtime Sylvan Society Members, and Marilyn has been a volunteer in our Development Department for the last decade. Falsettos was the first step toward the Kraut's deep connection to the Arden today. Recognizing the important role the Arden has played in the family's lives over the last 30 years, Larry, David, and Marilyn have generously come together to be the Supporting Sponsors for this production of Falsettos. The Arden is touched to be a small part of the Kraut family story and we are so appreciative of them, especially to Larry—Arden's original 'Jason'.
